

Aha recycling center

When we were in Germany we visited the recycling center. To get there we first walked through the forest. A very nice woman who works there welcomed us. First she gave us orange wastcoats. Then she spoke about the importance of caring for nature and she explained to us how the garbage waste was recycled. She said that they collected, transported, dispose of, or recycled waste and valuable materials. The streets of the state capital Hannover are clean and safe in summer as well as in winter. Conscious of their special responsibility for the environment and society, they act in a forward-looking and social way. As a modern and progressive company, they know their ecological responsibility and they are paying attention to the highest possible environmental protection in everything they do. In doing so, they make a lasting contribution to improving the quality of life in the Hannover region. While we were listening the woman gave us bio gummy bears and they were really tasty. We were outside and it was cold. I think that what they do is very helpful to environment. We learnt a lot and I am glad that we got a chance to visit it.
